Young Rheologists

Days 2020

July 06-09, 2021

GIRON, France.

Our goals

The JJR2020 meeting is held to establish a discussion forum for the community of engineers and scientists in the rheology field. For the first time, we aim at giving a more international dimension to this meeting, thanks to the privileged location of Giron (Jura) not so far from Switzerland, Italy and Germany. We expect between 70 and 100 attendees with more than 80 Phd and post-doctoral students. The objective is to give to all applicants the opportunity to present their work and exchange with confirmed rheologists from a wide range of backgrounds.

Rheologist from universities, research centers or industry will be able to report on the most recent advances in the field. It is our belief that this conference would benefit from expanding to (i) bordering countries such as Switzerland, Italy, Belgium, Germany, Spain and (ii) other countries over Europe and Africa.

Registration fee all included:

280 €!

Invited lectures

The conference will include 5 Guest speakers for Plenary Lectures from scientific and industrial pioneers in the field.

Prof. Jan Vermant (ETH Zurich, Switzerland), Weissenberg Award of the European Society of Rheology (EU)

Other Keynotes lectures will be also given by eminent rheologists over the world!.

Oral presentations and organization of Round-table

All the registered young phd students and post-doc will present their work. Furthermore, we hope to tie strong bonds between academia and local industry; the organization of a ritual round-table devoted to confirmed rheologists along with companies involved in rheology developments in different fields of application would help this issue.
